CBS MORNINGS is set to follow co-host Gayle King's trip to the edge of space, making it a central feature of the program's guest schedule from April 14th. King's flight aboard Blue Origin's New Shepard rocket from West Texas will receive extensive coverage across multiple days, supplemented by conversations with figures from science, entertainment, and exploration.

The focus begins Monday, April 14th, as King departs from Blue Origin's Launch Site One. Co-host Nate Burleson and featured host Vlad Duthiers will provide reports from Van Horn, Texas. To add background, the show plans talks with astronaut Dr. Mae Jemison, aerospace engineer Emily Calandrelli ("The Space Gal"), and CBS News space consultant Bill Harwood. Other guests include explorer Vanessa O'Brien, who previously flew with Blue Origin, actor David Oyelowo ("Government Cheese"), and CBS Sports reporter Amanda Balionis.
